

Preparatory measures and behavior in crisis situations for Swiss nationals in Indonesia

1. Introduction

The Federal Act on Swiss Persons and Institutions Abroad, or Swiss Abroad Act (ASA), which came into force on 1 November 2015, enshrines the principle of personal responsibility of Swiss nationals abroad. The legislator expects every person to assume personal responsibility when preparing and realising a stay abroad or carrying out an activity abroad, to behave in a risk-appropriate manner and to overcome any difficulties that arise on their own.

The Federal Department of Foreign Affairs (FDFA) can support persons abroad if it is not reasonable or possible for them to protect their interests themselves or with the help of third parties. Consular protection, i.e. possible assistance from the FDFA, begins when the person concerned has done everything possible to overcome the emergency themselves, with the support of the local authorities, their insurance(s) and others. There is no legal entitlement to federal assistance.

2. Sources of information

The local authorities are primarily responsible for the safety of all inhabitants of a country, including the local Swiss community. The local authorities can make recommendations for the protection of the population and initiate crisis management measures. Their instructions must be followed in the event of a crisis.

Specific information on preparation and information in the event of a crisis can be found on the websites of the following authorities:

Indonesian National Disaster Management Authority

The Federal Office of Public Health FOPH (<https://www.bag.admin.ch/en>), the website www.healthytravel.ch and the World Health Organization (www.who.int) are important sources of health information.

3. Important preparatory measures

You should always have the following items ready in the event of a crisis (non-exhaustive list):

Important documents (incl. copies of these documents)

<input type="checkbox"/>	Valid travel documents
<input type="checkbox"/>	Driving licence and vehicle documents
<input type="checkbox"/>	Foreigner's identity cards
<input type="checkbox"/>	Valid visas

Finances

<input type="checkbox"/>	Cash and foreign currency reserves
<input type="checkbox"/>	Credit card(s)
<input type="checkbox"/>	Bank card(s)

Information and communication

<input type="checkbox"/>	List of important telephone/emergency numbers
<input type="checkbox"/>	Mobile phone, possibly with spare battery or power bank and sufficient call credit
<input type="checkbox"/>	Battery-operated (short-wave) radio with spare batteries

Health

<input type="checkbox"/>	Pocket pharmacy with important medication
<input type="checkbox"/>	Blood group card
<input type="checkbox"/>	Vaccination card
<input type="checkbox"/>	Insurance policies (illness, accident, repatriation)

Emergency supplies

<input type="checkbox"/>	Drinking water
<input type="checkbox"/>	Food (emergency cooker if necessary)
<input type="checkbox"/>	Fuel

You can reduce the risk of damage by taking various preventive measures (non-exhaustive list):

- Have your house and furnishings/equipment checked for earthquake, fire, flood and storm safety and install fire alarms.
- Secure walls, doors and windows against unauthorized entry.
- Arrange a meeting point with your family in case access to your home is not possible.
- Clarify escape routes to a safe place of refuge in Switzerland or a safe third country.
- Keep us informed of any changes of address, new telephone numbers (including mobile phone numbers abroad and in Switzerland) and email addresses so that we can contact you in an emergency. You can also do this yourself via the online desk.

4. Behavior in the event of a crisis

- Keep yourself informed about the current situation, in particular via the local media, notices from the local authorities and the FDFA website.
- In the event of a crisis, follow the instructions of the local authorities, for example regarding precautionary measures, exclusion zones, evacuations, etc.
- Avoid demonstrations, riots and large gatherings of people of any kind.
- Stay in contact with your relatives.
- Follow the FDFA's travel advice.
- Follow the FDFA's safety recommendations. In the event of an ongoing crisis situation, the FDFA may recommend that Swiss nationals leave the crisis area.
- Swiss nationals make the decision to leave a crisis area on their own responsibility, voluntarily, at their own risk and at their own expense.
- Crises can escalate very quickly; escape routes may be blocked and it may no longer be possible to leave the country or part of the country (safely). If the security situation deteriorates, leave the country/part of the country as long as this is still possible and commercial means of transport are available.

- Be aware that, depending on the situation on the ground, our ability to support you in the event of a crisis may be limited or - in the worst case - non-existent.

5. Travel Admin: Information Travel Admin

You and your family members can enter the details of your short-term stays outside your host country on this portal. Please also ask your visitors from Switzerland to register their trip on Travel Admin. This information will help the FDFA to contact you in the event of a crisis abroad and provide you with important information on how to help yourself.
